Good morning.

Good morning.

So in South Carolina, we start off the days great. You know, it's a thrill to be here at the UN. And I will tell you that we have hit the ground running.

There is a new USUN.

We talked to the staff yesterday, and you are going to see a change in the way we do business. It's no longer about working harder. It's about working smarter. And we have a fantastic team at the USUN that's ready to prove that.

Our goal with the Administration is to show value at the UN. And the way that we'll show value is to show our strength, show our voice, have the backs of our allies, and make sure that our allies have our back, as well.

For those that don't have our back, we're taking names. We will make points to respond to that accordingly.

But this is a time of strength.

This is a time of action.

This is a time of getting things done.

And this Administration is prepared and ready to go in -- to have me go in, look at the UN. And everything that's working, we're going to make it better; everything that's not working, we're going to try and fix; and anything that is -- seems to be obsolete and not necessary, we're going to do away with.

But this is a time of fresh eyes, new strength, new vision, and a great day at the USUN.

Thank you very much.
